All Souls: A Family Story From Southie is an autobiographical memoir written by Michael Patrick MacDonald and published by Beacon Press in September 1999. The writing recounts MacDonald's growing up in the Old Colony Housing Projects in South Boston, a neighborhood comprised of mostly white Irish Catholics.

Michael Patrick MacDonald has lived with the myths all his life, and All Souls: A Family Story from Southie is his survivor's tale. MacDonald, an anti-violence activist who grew up in the Old Colony housing project in South Boston's Lower End, has produced a contradictory but compelling book—one that condemns the fiercely insular, self-deluding Southie culture that helped ravage a generation of South Boston teenagers, even as it celebrates the spirit of community which that culture ...
